HIS POP. VALVE.

For many weeks the Mist has patiently waited for John P. Carroll, editor of the Evening Telegram, to either make good or apologize for his defamatory assertions regarding the officials of Clatskanie County and the editor of this paper. He must know by this time that he was led astray by a yellow reporter, yet he has not the manhood to acknowledge his mistake. We believe, however, a recent editorial in the Telegram explains to some extent the otherwise inexplicable outburst of spleen. Discussing cursing as a relief from nervous tension the Telegram says:

If we may place reliance in the announcement of this worthy media we have an antidote for wracked nerves that is within the reach of every human being—a specific without a price and to be had with at once. Theoretically the matter is set forth thus: Man moved to anger—out of pure courtesy, comment upon the subject should be confined to men—accidently instant, a surplus of energy which we may say, in popular phraseology, rushes to the head. The brain is surcharged with emotion that presses upon the nerve structures, starting it in all its plots and connections after the fashion in which an inordinate head of steam affects the tubes of a boiler. What is needed as relief to avert probable disaster is a "pop valve." According to the British medical man, probably furnishes the easiest and most natural outlet. It would serve every purpose if a man under such strain should jaw the earth, tear his hair, gnash his teeth, jump, run, kick or fight; but as a rule he will not do any one of these things; he simply converts his excess emotion into variegated and picturesque vocalism, and is saved from nervous demolition.

Mr. Carroll had been mad—mad all over. His paper had been caught in a deliberate fake, and after all his posing as a purveyor of nothing but the real article, it rolled him considerable to be exposed by a country newspaper. There was no possible way of digging or truthfully denying the accusation. It would have served every purpose had he "pawed the earth, torn his hair, gnashed his teeth, jumped, ran, kicked or fought," but he would rather lie, and he did lie—viciously and inexorably, and by his neglect or refusal to apologize or make good he is persisting in a lie. Venting his bile upon Columbia County officials will, we trust, relieve his system so that he will have no further use for his pop valve until the term of his present employment is ended, and he sinks into the obscurity that always awaits mendacious mediocrities.

YANKTON ITEMS

Yankton school commenced Sept. 7th with an enrollment of fifty-eight pupils. Miss Olive Donnell of Portland is the principal and Charles E. Lake of St. Helens has charge of the primary department. The people of Yankton feel that they have reason to be proud of the fine new school house built last year at a cost of between $4,000 and $5,000.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dalmat of Portland passed through our little village Saturday homeward bound after a pleasant camping trip at Bunker Hill.

Mrs. Frank Brown and sons Tom and Clare and Miss Iva Tarbell have also returned from camping at Bunker Hill. Bunker Hill may become a popular resort owing to the superior quality of the spring water.

Laurence Tarbell is building a very pretty and comfortable bungalow cottage. It adds quite a little to the picturesque scenery of the valley.

Messrs D. M. Robenette, James Robenette and George Hasty are all building pretty new estates on their farms recently purchased from W. T. Stevens.

L. F. Berger and family have moved in their new house near the Stanwood mill.

Yankton Grange is expecting to hold a fair sometime in October following the State and County Fair.

Pete Krietz the popular clerk in C. H. Brigg's store went to Portland Sept. 5th and 6th, the latter being Labor day. He is a city boy but seems to like country life.

The ball game between the Yankton Colts and the Stanwood Hustlers resulted in the defeat of the Hustlers. The score was 13 to 11.

The Stanwood mill after being closed for two months, will begin operation next Monday.

Nasten's camp closed down for a month during the summer, but started again about two weeks ago.

Mr. H. C. Johnson of Clatskanie is building a new shingle mill, and will be ready to run in a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Deyo and Mrs. George Broughton of Portland visited with Mrs. Charles Briggs last week.

Mrs. B. F. Westmore and little son arrived to Spokane via Portland and Seattle last week.

Mrs. Rudolph Karth has been quite ill in the Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland, but is improving now.

Miss Minnie Betnar has recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia.

Pete Lamp met with quite a painful accident about three weeks ago, having his ankle cut badly. He is just able to walk at this time.

Mrs. Depeen of Oakland California is visiting, Mrs. G. C. Berger, her sister.

DEER ISLAND

School started last Tuesday.

Mrs. C. H. English was a Portland visitor last Friday.

A number of young people took in the dance at Goble Saturday night.

There is talk of a new barber shop going up. It is much needed.

Nina Cooper and William Bush were married in Rainier. Judge Bowen officiating.

Bert Adams was a Portland visitor this week.

Harry Smith was a Deer Island visitor Saturday.

Willis Kelly was a Houlton visitor Saturday.

The duck hunters have again made their appearance to have sport with the ducks.

The young fellow that was giving the horse exercise was pretty well shaken up, but no bones broken.
